

Western Australia's recognised training council for the Creative and Leisure Industries incorporating the cultural, recreation, hospitality, tourism, information, media, telecommunications and printing industries.

FutureNow brings together industry leaders, training organisations and action groups to make recommendations to government regarding workforce development strategies for Western Australia.

Working across the creative and leisure industries, FutureNow's mission is to facilitate the continual improvement of workforce skills to drive productivity and deliver a competitive edge for Western Australian companies now and into the future.

FutureNow Membership

By becoming a member of FutureNow – Creative and Leisure Industries Training Council Inc, you are demonstrating your commitment to people development. You support wider industry collaboration and action to ensure that there is an ongoing supply of people with the right skills, in the right place, at the right time. You will have access to industry experience and connections through our Board, and become connected with, and have access to a range of industry, government and education and training leaders.

By becoming a FutureNow member, you will be recognised as a business or organisation that participates in:

- skills development;
- promotion of international best practice principles;
- advocating workforce opportunities for all age groups;
- encouraging training and employment in regional areas;
- advocating multi-cultural training and employment; and
- encouraging indigenous training and employment.

You will have access to professional qualified staff for the provision of advice, support and services; and will receive priority notice of Government workforce development initiatives, grants and funding.

Benefits:

- You will be entitled to attend and vote at general meetings and to stand for election to the Board of FutureNow – Creative and Leisure Industries Training Council Inc.
- You will receive regular and relevant information about the current industry and education and training environment.
- You will have a direct say in influencing the workforce development needs and the future investment in skills by government, for your industry and in turn your own organisation.
- Your investment in the organisation that is recognised and listened to by Government will be used only to enhance our work for the industries we cover.
- You will receive invitations to all FutureNow social activities and events.
- You will have priority access to high profile sponsorship activities.
- You will have an opportunity to provide promotional signage or marketing material at FutureNow events where appropriate.
- The logo and link to your business or organisation can be displayed on the FutureNow website.
